Chicago, May 15.-Liquidation of wheat was the feature of that market to-day, but at its height was only strong enough to cause a %c break. By closing time all but of this had been recovered. The minor markets were relatively weaker than wheat, corn declining & Fr.c. oats the same mount and provisions 74610c. In wheat, the market got a little encouragement to begin with from Liverpool, which appeared to have been removed by the knowledge of vesterday's decline here, that market closing at unchanged prices. That appeared to be the only bullish influence, but it was strong enough to open wheat at 146% advance, but the strength foded almost immediately. The majority of the speculators took more account of favorable news, such as the showers in California were taken to be, than of steadiness in Liverpool, which they knew would not in Liverpool, which they knew would not continue iong in the face of cheaper offerings from here. They supplied the early demand and had more for sale which they could get rid of only by shading the price every few minutes until the price of July had tumbled from 73%c, which was paid for a few lots at the start, to 72%c, at which there were sellers about 11 o'clock. The shipments abroad of wheat and flour from both coasts this week were equal to 2.183, 570 bushels, against 1.799,000 bushels on the week hefore, and 1.90,000 bushels on the corresponding week last year. Argentine shipped no wheat to Europe this week. Receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth amounted to 336 cars, against 285 last week and 347 a year ago. Chicago receipts were reported at seven cars. The liquidation, although not heavy enough to make an active market, was still sufficient to keep prices down until near the close, when some recovery ensued on the announcement that 230,000 bushels of cash wheat had been worked here. The market on this advanced to 73%c, which was the closing price.

"I do not feel bullish on wheat at this moment," said A. J. Weil, who has been prominent in the Chicago market of late. "Outsiders in the market and professionals are not to be relied upon for a very long pull in a bull campaign. When they make a profit on the long side, they are in a hurry to get it and to get back into their natural position, the bear side."

F. G. Legan wired Houston, Fible & Co. yesterday: "I am inclined to think that the difference will narrow between July and September wheat. About the only short interest, in my judgment, is in September, and I think there is quite a large interest that is long on July and short September. The new rule to take effect October I, throwing out No. 2 spring, has caused some selling of September. I advise caution in selling September. I advise caution in selling September and buying July at the prevailing difference."

Stocks and Bonds.

New York, May 15.—Chicago Gas and Sugar absorbed over one-third of the total sales at the short session of the Stock exchange to-day, the dealings being about equally divided between them. There was so little to encourage selling in the course of the price for Chicago Gas that the motive for it must be attributed to doubts of the value of the stock being equal to the price. There were, in fact, evidences of heavy liquidation in that stock, based on apprehensions that the consolidation measure will fail of enactment in the Illinois legislature, and with it the arrangement for division of territory with a rival company, which was made contingent upon its passage. Stop orders were reached on the way down, bringing large blocks of the stock upon the sagging market. Sugar also showed weakness on the probable effect of pending proceedings against members of the company for contempt of the senate, but recovered the loss. The grangers also were subjected to special strack by the bears, on account of the weakness of the wheat market. There was but little encouragement to buy in the course of the London market, where Americans were largely neglected and prices were weak. There was manifest apprehension also as to what phase the Cuban question may have taken on by the time trading is resumed Monday. The impression provailed in the street that the intention of the administration towards Cuba were in a formative state, with a possibility of taking on an aggressive tone.

ive tone.

The bond market was quiet during the week and suffered some sharp declines in the usually dormant bonds. The undertone of the general market was fairly good, with purchases for foreign account exerting quite a sustaining influence.

The following was the range of prices yesterday, as furnished by the C. S. Lee Commission Company, 200 New York Life building:

REPRESENTATIVE SALES. From the Troy Observer.

The passing of the Crystal saloon. Gone, but not forgotten. Erected in 1728. Razed only a few days ago. The Crystal saloon. which adjoined the Frear house, was for over forty years the principal and about the only rendezvous for sporting men in this city. It was the resort of such well known men as John Morrissey, John Daly, Colonel Jim Scovel and others. Stories have been told of plays of fare when the limit was the sky, and where the checks were piled on a card as high as the ceiling. Many good stories are told of big games played in the Crystal. One of the best is of the great poker game in which the late John Morrissey and Colonel Jim Scovel were the two important players. It was near thirty years ago. It was a bleak December night. This was before Scovel was sent to the United States senate by the Jerseyites, and when Morrissey was at the height of his prominence. It was a sixhanded game of draw. The game had been lagging on for three hours without any excitement. Morrissey was about $2,000 winner. Scovel was loser of about half that much. The play which made this story came up about 2 o'clock in the morning. John was the dealer. Scovel sat to his left and was the first man to speak. It was a $20 "jack."

It was a $20 "jack."

"Pass." said the big colonel, never looking at his hand.

The next man did the same as Scovel, but the player who followed him opened it for $120, the size of the pot. The next man stayed, the next passed, and when it came to Morrissey, he tilted it $300. It was now Scovel's turn. There was $300 now in the center. Scovel was a poker player of the old school. He would lay down four acces as quickly as the amateur would draw four cards to an acc when it cost $100, and he would play a three-card flush if the pot was worth winning at all.

cost $100, and he would play a three-card flush if the pot was worth winning at all. Scovel looked at his hand when Morrissey had finished putting in the checks. He stared at John for a few moments, all the time fumbling his checks, and then in a cool way went down in his inside pocket and pulled out a large wallet.

"Til raise you $80." Jim said.

The man who had opened the pot saw both raises, for he sat with a nice pat straight in his hand, and the next fellow put in his $1,170. Morrissey was nonplussed when it came to him. It was at least fitteen minutes before he put in the $30.

"Tim in so much. I might as well stay," he remarked as he picked up the dock. "How many Jim?"

"Three," answered Scovel, "and see that they are good ones."

"Oh! I've got you beat," chirped John, as he dealt out the required number.

"Til play these," was the answer of the man who held the bat straight.

"That's a good thing," said Morrissey, looking in a surprised way at the man.

"Give me two," was the order of the next man, and he got them.

"Well. I only want one, and I don't need it at that," remarked Morrissey, as he took the top card.

The man who had opened was one of these fellows who are always afraid of a one-card draw, and he merely chipped in $50 cents. The next man was there with three acces cold and he threw a $50 green-back in the center. It was now Morrissey's turn. He had "skinned" his hand off two or three times.

The man with the pat straight passed without hesitating, and the next with three aces concluded that his hand wasn't worth $2.000 any more, so he, too, dropped out. "How about splitting the pot, Jim?" asked Morrissey. "Never," replied Scovel, "but I'll let you take your last raise out."

STORIES OF ANDREW JACKSON. A Tavern Bill That Was Wiped Out by the Battle of New Orleans.

Jackson departed from Guilford for his new home in Tennessee, he left a bill of 324 due the tavern. Cranor sent him one dun after another, carefully noting on the book that no reply had been received. When the newspapers containing the ac-counts of the battle of New Orleans ar-rived Cranor read the story through. He then walked across to the register, and wrote in red across the page beside Jack-son's name:

then walked across to the register, and wrote in red across the page beside Jackson's name:

"To balance in full by the battle of New Orleans."

The book is said to be in existence to this day.

Judge Fuller, of the United States court of land claims, says that the idea that Jackson was rough and uncouth is entirely incorrect. He was well versed in the law, and the opinions written by him while a judge of the supreme court of Tennessee are said to be models of their kind.

It has just been discovered in the archives of Guilford county that Jackson was once a constable, with the rank of deputy sheriff. His oath and bond are now on file in the county documents, and one of the old citizens recalls the fact that the "oldest inhabitant" told him in his boyhood how Jackson was assistant to the high sheriff.

The old minute docket shows that Andrew Jackson was admitted to the Guilford bar in 1381 and was appointed constable in 1789, two years after. He resigned as constable in 1781 and was appointed constable in 1781 and was appointed constable in 1781 and was appointed constable in 1782 and was appointed to constable in 1783 and was appointed to constable in 1789, two years after. He resigned as constable in 1781 and was appointed to constable in 1782 and was appointed constable in 1789, two years after. He resigned as constable in 1781 and was appointed to constable were required to appear once a year in open court, each with a wand or staff six feet long, one and one-half inches in diameter, the top painted black. The high sheriff was required to carry a staff eight feet long. This long and solemn procession wended its way down the principal streat and into the court room, where the records of the officers were reviewed.

Whether the scarcity of cases at law induced Jackson to become a constable, so as to add to his small income, or he wanted the honor of marching in this imposing annual procession is not recorded.

Frog Freaks With Five Legs.

From Freaks With Five Legs.

From the Philadelphia Press.

The famous Calaveras county frog has found a legitimate successor. This one also lives in California, making his home near Coloma. His claim to fame lies in the fact that he has five legs and is credited with the ability to understand the English language. This is, more correctly speaking, his principal claim to fame; he is also remarkable for his toes. He has nineteen of these three on each hind foot, four on each of the other feet and five on the foot belonging to the extra leg. This legicins his body somewhat forward of the normal front leg and is supplied with regular bones and joints. The connection with the body is apparently perfect. In other respects the frog is like any other frog.

His style of traveling, however, is pecu-His style of traveling, however, is peculiar. With three legs on the left side and but two on the other, his course continually veers to the right, so that after making a certain number of jumps he arrives at his starting point. It is this curious method of locomotion that led to his discovery. James O'Connor, his owner, had occusion to pass the Holy Cross cemetery, at Coloma, when his attention was attracted by the little reptile's efforts to move about, which resulted merely in his describing a series of circles.

WEEK'S RECEIPTS SHOW A BIG GAIN OVER CHICAGO.

In Trade Growth Kansas City Leads All the Western Markets-Stock Yards Notes and Personal Gossip.

The story of receipts the past week was another interesting one to Kansas City. They showed a gain in the cattle here of 10,100, while in Chicago it was but 1,400; in Omaha, 4,000, and in St. Louis, 900. In hogs there was an increase here of 35,500; in Chi-cago, 10,700; in Omaha, 12,100, and in St. Louis a decrease of 1,400. In sheep, however, there was a general decrease. A falling off here of 2,800; in Chicago, 12,800; in Omaha, 5,500, and in St. Louis, 14,000. Kansas City, it will readily be seen by these figures, continues to lead all other Western markets in its trade growth, and where a loss was made it was noticeably light compared with its neighboring cities. The inspection fee of 2c per head on all cattle shipped into Kansas which for a time has been levied and collected by the Kansas live stock sanitary board, was discontinued yesterday.

The George R. Barse Live Stock Commi The George R. Couldn't Stop Her. From the Cincinnati Tribune.

"Madame." said the conductor of the cable car, "don't you see that sign? It says 'Passengers must not talk to the motorman." What!" exclaimed the madame. "I guess you don't know who I am, young man. I'm his wife!"
And the conductor forgot to shake down three fares, he was so confused.

She smiled at me as she swiftly passed,
Over the handle bar:
That sunny smile was the maiden's last,
Over the handle bar:
She cannoned hard on a naughty stone,
She took a header she couldn't postpone.
And her twinkling beels in the moonlight ne, Over the handle bar. —Irish Cyclist
